DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 112

1. The following is a quotation of the second paragraph of 35 U.S.C. 112:

The specification shall conclude with one or more claims particularly pointing out and distinctly claiming the subject matter which the applicant regards as his invention.

2. Claims 1-3 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 112, second paragraph, as being indefinite for failing to particularly point out and distinctly claim the subject matter which applicant regards as the invention.

Regarding claims 1-3, the phrase "or the like" renders the claim(s) indefinite because the claim(s) include(s) elements not actually disclosed (those encompassed by "or the like"), thereby rendering the scope of the claim(s) unascertainable. See MPEP § 2173.05(d).

Claim 1, line 7, "a side plate" is not clear to how this relates to "a pair of side plates" recited early in the claim.

Claim 3, line 3, "said former portions" lacks antecedent basis.

Claim 3, line 4, "said latter portions" lacks antecedent basis.

Claim 3, line 5, "a metallic plate" is unclear to how this relates to "a metallic member" recited in claim 1.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

3. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

4. Claim 1 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Moritz (4,384,594).

Moritz discloses a cable protection and guide device in which a plurality of link bodies (A) articulably connected to each other in the longitudinal direction in a state where the cable was inserted into the device, each of the link bodies including a pair of side plates (Figs 4 and 7) disposed on both sides with respect to the cable, and in which a linear position and bend or articulation position are limited by bend angle limiting means (B) provided on a portion in the side plates, which contacts one of the side plates of the adjacent link body, wherein the bend angle limiting means (B) is formed of a metallic member provided on the side plate. Moritz does not disclose the side plates consisting of a conductive synthetic resin. However, it would have been obvious to one skilled in the art to use conductive resin (semiconducting) material for the side plates of Moritz to meet the specific use of the resulting device since semiconducting material is known in the art for being used to protect cable. In addition, it has been held that within the general skill of a worker in the art to select a known material on the basis of its suitability for the intended use as a matter of obvious design choice. In re Leshin, 125 USPQ 416.

Allowable Subject Matter

5. Claims 2 and 3 would be allowable if rewritten to overcome the rejection(s) under 35 U.S.C. 112, second paragraph, set forth in this Office action and to include all of the limitations of the base claim and any intervening claims.

6. The following is a statement of reasons for the indication of allowable subject matter: the prior art of record does not teach or suggest a cable protection and guide device comprising all the features as recited in the claims and in combination with the bend angle limiting means being formed of a metallic plate which is laminated on the side plate and contacts the side plates of the adjacent link bodies (re claim 2) and with one of the protrusion and recess being laminated on the side plate, being formed of a metallic plate, and contacting the side plates of the adjacent link bodies (re claim 3).

Cited Art

7. The prior art made of record and not relied upon is considered pertinent to applicant's disclosure. Takahashi et al., Pea, Viano, and Moritz et al. disclose cable protection and guide devices comprising link bodies.
